Season for Shows

This is the season for major cars shows for PCCC. April 26-29 is the Good Guys Show at the State Fairgrounds. As most of you already know PCCC is the host car club, and it happens only because we have a full-blown effort by our club members to staff close to 100 volunteer positions. Thank you all for volunteering and THANK YOU to Ray Bader for once again chairing this show. This show contributes major dollars to PCCC for our efforts, and a fun time is had by all.

Approximately four weeks later is OUR big car show on May 26th at Lake Wheeler. Once again, the success of this show depends on our volunteer efforts to make it happen. A big Thank You to Les Shelton, this years show chair. If you have not already volunteered to be part of the show, it is not too late. Contact Les and let him know you want to be part of the best local show in NC.

Finally, we are getting into the busy spring and summer time for shows, cruise-ins, etc. Check our website for additional events. We are in a great area for Classic Cars. Step up and be part of it.

MY TRUCK—It's Quest
By, Jerry B. Hart and Daniel L. Stamm

One of my early jobs was delivering milk for Pine State Creamery. This was in the day when you got up and ready for breakfast, your milk would be on your doorstep for you to use. One of my customers was Rufus Dunham. In his driveway was the prettiest blue half ton Chevrolet truck that I ever saw. It was like the old days in the comic strips where a light bulb went off in my head. I do not know what was so special about that truck as there were lots of Chevy pickups around, but that was it. It was a five window cab. It had those little windows in the back corners. I still don't know how they counted them, maybe a windshield, plus five. A little voice inside of me said, "someday that truck will be mine."

I inquired of Mr. Dunham and he explained the truck was owned by the agricultural department of Cary High School where he taught drivers-ed. Let us remember this was some time ago but what better vehicle could be used for drivers-ed instruction with a clutch and 3 speed floor shift as many of the students were from a rural area. It seems all the students cared for him as they developed a nick-name "Dad Dunham." At this point my hoped dropped about owning the truck and time went by. Some time later I became aware that Dad Dunham had retired. By this time the truck had become a little obsolete for drivers-ed. The school gave the truck to him as a retirement gift. That light in my head flickered again a little bit. I talked to Mr. Dunham a couple of times but he informed me he would keep the truck as long as he was alive. It had been promised to a relative for restoration. The light went out again.

More time went by and through my work at Hobart I found out that a restaurant called "Ole Time Barbecue" could be purchased. This was one of my dreams even bigger than the Chevy pick-up, so I purchased it. Here Kathy, my wife's Dad who had been self employed all his life said, "now you've done it! From here on in you will only work half days and you are free to pick which 12 hours you will work each day." Now I am in the restaurant business. Approximately 10 years have passed, the restaurant has had a few bumps but things are going pretty good, and I get a phone call. It is Mrs. Dunham. Apparently she had heard some of her husbands and my discussions and she tells me that she got the truck back and I was to be the first in line to purchase it. That light bulb almost exploded!

I immediately went to see her. It looks a little different. It's now Chevrolet Green, the old solid front axil was gone, replaced by a modern coil spring suspension. The old stove bolt six had been replaced with a 350 ci V8, driving an automatic transmission. After pondering all this, I concluded these are the things I probably would have wanted to do and a little price discussion, the truck was mine!! Now, what do I do?

By, Jerry B. Hart and Daniel L. Stamm

With the help of my 4 year old daughter, I began my restoration. One of the big things was a new truck bed kit which had to be assembled. On one occasion, Alisa setting astride the differential pumpkin, and handing me tools, as we had quite the discussion, and I promised her this truck would be hers one day. On another occasion as I rolled out from under the truck on a creeper, she was holding a ball peen hammer, which she dropped hitting me right on the forehead. She promptly ran in the house and said "Daddy Hurt!!" Kathy immediately ran out visioning the truck being dropped on me, but all was cool.

For economy reasons, I did not purchase the rear fenders with the truck bed kit. Repairing the ones I had, taxed me to my very end. A good friend and a restaurant customer, Don Cooper, who owns a far out pick up similar to mine, pitched in to help me with some of the technical work. Believe me, his truck is as far out as a truck can go. He helped me with such things as reversing the rear springs and lengthening the drive shaft that would line up and back wheels with the fenders. For this technical support, I cannot thank Don enough.

I have now retired from the restaurant, although I cannot stay away as I love the people and the customers. My son Ben is doing an excellent job of managing the restaurant now. We will celebrate 25 years of the restaurant in May. My retirement interests are my Harley, raising money for the Pediatric Brain Tumor Foundation, and my truck, which always has something to be done.

I neglected to mention the truck is a 1953 model, the year I was born. I have later found out that it was delivered in July, the month I was born. How about that!! Maybe this is why the bulb kept flashing. How good can it get.

Jerry B. Hart

THE SMALL BLOCK CHEVY ENGINE

The small block Chevy engine wasn't the first V8 engine. Chevrolet's first V8 engine (Chevy's "Series D" V8 engine was offered from 1917-'19). Until the mid 1950s, Chevrolet used six-cylinder engines for its passenger vehicles. The Ford Flathead V8 had become popular in the 1950s, particularly with hot rodders because of its increased power potential.

Other manufacturers jumped on the V8 bandwagon—Cadillac with its OHV V8 in 1949, Oldsmobile with its 303 -cubic-inch Rocket, and Chrysler with its early HEMI in 1951—but Chevrolet was actually late to the game. Ed Cole was hired by Chevrolet in 1952 and spearheaded the development of the Gen I small block engine. As chief engineer on the small block project, Cole set out to build a lightweight, inexpensive V8 engine that would outperform anything from the Ford camp. By 1955, when the 265-cubic-inch small block Chevy debuted in the Corvette and Belair, it delivered nearly twice the horsepower (185 horses from the 4-barrel version) as the venerable Flathead in a package that weighed less than Chevrolet's six-cylinder power plants. The design and dimensions of the original small block allowed engineers to create different versions by essentially changing bore and stroke size. Soon, the small block lineup included a 283, 327, 350, and even a 400 -cubic-inch engine.

Over the years, the small block also proved to be quite durable, thanks in part to the use of forged cranks and connecting rods. The performance capability of the engine made it popular for street cars, off-road, trucks, boats, and race cars. What's more, you can even find small blocks swapped into Fords, Jeeps, and other non-Chevrolet vehicles.

The Mouse Engines

The 265 Turbo Fire—Offered in 1955

The 307—Offered in 1968

The 283 Turbo Fire—Offered in 1957—came with a choice of carburetion or mechanical fuel injection.

The 400—Debuted in 1970, the 400 was the largest of the small block family. Known more for its torque, the engine was available in passenger cars through the 1976

The 327—Offered in 1962

The 302—Designed in 1966—was built to help the new Camaro Z/28 meet its obligations for Trans-Am Series (SCCA) competition.

The 262 — In 1975-76, Chevrolet offered the 262 small block, which produced just 110 horsepower.

The 350— was first introduced in 1967 as an option for the Camaro.

The 305— In 1977, the 305 replaced the 262 and would eventually become one of GM's most common V8s during the late 1970s and 80s.
